

Ann-Cathrin Pedersen

Ann-Cathrin Pedersen works at UNDP in New York as a project manager for the joint Swedish EPA-UNDP Environmental Governance Programme-Mining and co-coordinator for UNDP's global Extractive Industry and Human Rights & Environment work.

She has spent the past decade plus working on sustainable development in the UN system, focusing on areas in the nexus of nature, climate, energy, extractive industries, conflict, governance and human rights. She is passionate about nature and human well-being.

She has a multi-disciplinary background and holds a master in Middle East Studies from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

